

Skagit Valley Provincial Park

Interpretation Programs

July 19 - 21, 2024

Friday, July 19

Wolverines: Mysterious Mountaineers* Evening Presentation

8:00 pm at International Point Interpretation Shelter (approx. 45 minutes)

These relatively small carnivores have a big reputation, but few people really know much about them, and even biologists still have a lot to discover. Learn some of what we know about these masterful mountaineers and find out what the wolverines in the North Cascades have been showing researchers about their lives in these mountains.

Saturday, July 20 – Happy Parks Day!

Adapt to a Habitat* Jerry's Ranger/Junior Ranger Program

10:00 am at International Point Interpretation Shelter (approx. 45 minutes)

Learn about adaptations and how they help animals and plants survive in different places. Then use your creativity to make your own critter that's adapted to a particular habitat.

Parks Day Celebration!* Nature Talk

4:00 pm at International Point Day Use Area (playground)

Join the interpreter for a Parks Day extravaganza! There'll be some games, some give-aways, and lots of cool wildlife items to examine. Think about how parks are important to wildlife and share why parks are important to you!

Traditions of the Nlaka'pamux* Evening Presentation

8:00 pm at International Point Interpretation Shelter (approx. 45 minutes)

Join us for a special evening with guest presenters from Nlaka'pamux First Nation as they share some of the culture and traditions of their people, one of the peoples whose traditional territory includes the lands of the Skagit Valley.

Skagit Valley Provincial Park

Interpretation Programs

Sunday, July 21

Busy Babies* Jerry's Ranger/Junior Ranger Program

10:00 am at International Point Amphitheatre (approx. 45 minutes)

It's that time of year – much of our wildlife is busy raising babies, even right around the interpretation shelter. Join some fun activities to learn about our young park residents. Prepare for cuteness overload!

Film – More Power to You* Evening Presentation

8:00 pm at International Point Interpretation Shelter

The City of Seattle Department of Lighting made this 24 minute lush color film in the late 1940s to commemorate the expansion of the Skagit River hydroelectric project. See dignitaries examining the dam, and go for a hike into the glacier-studded wilderness of the Upper Skagit River to measure the snow pack. Courtesy of the Seattle Municipal Archives and the Seattle Channel.